California Tribes Take State of California to Court For Failure To Enforce Gaming Laws

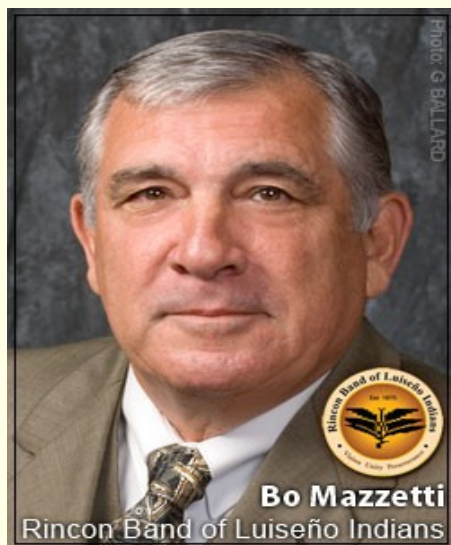

This Article was Published in the American Indian Reporter on June 1, 2019

Anthony Roberts
Yocha Dehe Chairman

Santa Ynez Band of Chumash Indians in November 2018 filed a lawsuit in San Diego County Superior Court alleging cardrooms and player-banking firms are violating state law..

Sixty-three California tribes operate casinos in accordance with tribal-state regulatory agreements, or compacts, the first of which were enacted with passage of Proposition IA in 2000. Prop IA is an amendment to the state constitution giving tribes exclusive right to operate banking and percentage games.

“State law, the constitution and our compacts are all very clear about our exclusive right to operate house-banked, casino-style card games,” Yocha Dehe Chairman Anthony Roberts said of last week’s federal litigation.

“We did not want to file this suit, but cardrooms continue to play and brazenly advertise these games, even though it’s patently illegal for them to do so.” “We are asking the state to simply do its job and enforce the gaming laws and rules California’s voters and state Legislature have put in place.” Roberts added.

The responsibility of enforcing the state cardrooms in accordance with state laws, game rules and regulations is the Bureau of Gambling

Control, a division of the state Department of Justice that was under the control of former Attorney General Kamala Harris and currently Xavier Becerra.

From 2012 to January 2017 as the State Attorney General, Kamala Harris followed the policies of selective implemented of laws.

But, Stephanie Shimazu, director of the Bureau of Gambling Control (BGC), said in a September 25, 2018 memo that her office “plans to rescind game rules approvals for games too similar to 21/blackjack that are prohibited by state law.”

Shimazu said the bureau also will “promulgate regulations to address rotation of the player-dealer” and examine cardroom contracts with TPPP firms hired to bank the games.

The bureau serves as the law enforcement arm of a bifurcated regulatory system with a policy-making Gambling Control Commission under the governor. California has the only politically bifurcated gambling regulatory system in the country.

Tribal regulators have held several meetings with the bureau and the commission in an effort to get gambling regulations in compliance with state penal and business codes dealing with prohibited games, rotation of the player-dealer position and use of TPPPs.

“Since 2012, we have sought resolution through the agencies and individuals responsible for enforcing these laws and preventing illegal gambling activity in California,” Viejas Chairman John Christman said.

John Christman
Viejas Chairman

“Going to court is regrettably our last recourse, only because of the state’s continued inaction against such blatant illegal activity. If California enforced its current laws, we would not have filed this lawsuit.” He added,

Austin Lee, executive director of Communities for California Cardrooms, warned that Shimazu’s game rules crackdown could cripple a card room industry that employs more than 20,000 workers and generates up to $300 million in federal, state and local taxes. “It would require cardrooms to significantly adjust operations,” he said.

The potential financial losses to the American Indian Tribal Government may be in the billions of dollars.

U.S. Senator, Kamala Harris

Before voting for Comrade Harris, Look at how She Refused to Protect CA Tribal Gaming.

The primary purpose for the re-print of the article above is to serve as a reminder that Kamala Harris has never been and never will be a friend of the American Indian Tribes.

However, a large number of American Indian tribal members continue to support the dependency on the Federal Government as if it is an entitlement, while spouting “Tribal Sovereignty & Self-Governance.” They may be uninformed or Bureau of Indian Affairs Indians AKA BIA Indians. Another excuse for their support for Big Government control over the Tribes is believed that they may suffer from the “Stockholm Syndrome.”

Historically, the Mission Indian Federation ideology of “Self Rule, Less Government, Tribal and Individual Rights,” served as the primary political ideology of the southern California Tribes and is still supported by many of the older generation. During the 43 year reign of the MIF their congressional political allies were Democrats. Although neither Party was willing to allow the Tribal Governments any self-governance authority.

Of course Alcatraz in 1969 was the symbolic awakening followed by the activism of the American Indian Movement (AIM).

In 1975 Gov. Reagan allow for the establishment of ten Indian Education Center to be operated by Tribes or Tribal groups and President Nixon sponsored PL 93-638 which ended the “Termination Policy” of the America Indians and allowed the American Indian Tribe to Self-Govern. It has been almost 50 years and the BIA Indians still think the Democrats give a “Rats A..” about them.

Individual American Indian Rights will never be allowed within a Socialism/Communism Government that has been promoted since F.D. Roosevelt and reinstated by the Soros Cartel pretending to be Obama, stopped by Trump, reinstated by 80 million votes for Comrade Biden and now we have Comrades Harris and Walz, both full fledged Communist.

Sorry folks, but these people have only one mission, to complete the “Transformation of American to a full fledged Socialism/Communism Government “

'Copycat Kamala' steals Trump's 'No Tax on Tips' idea despite Biden-Harris admin crackdown on tips

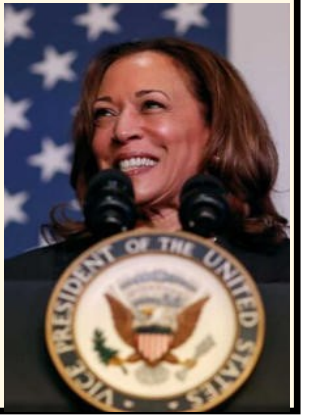

Fox Business Network host Elizabeth MacDonald exposed the sheer hypocrisy of Vice President Kamala Harris's sudden advocacy for not taxing tips.

The new Democratic frontrunner shocked senses when she flagrantly ripped off Republican nominee Donald Trump's "No Tax on Tips" proposal while speaking at the University of Nevada at Las Vegas on Saturday — the state has the highest concentration of tipped workers in the country.

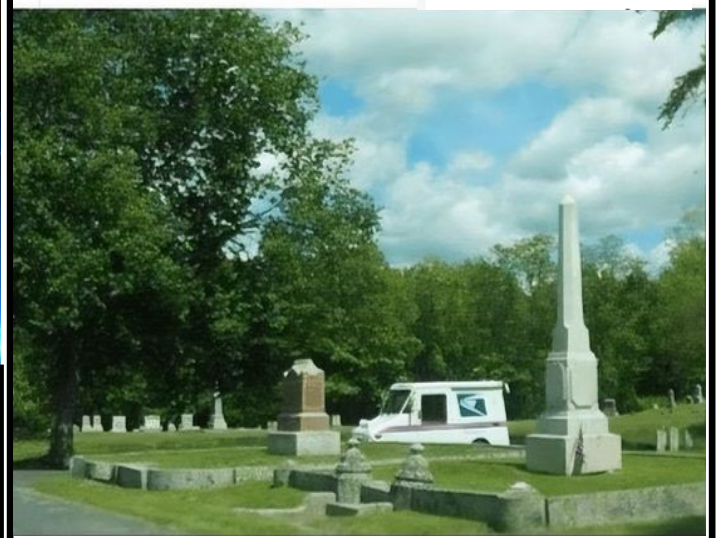

However, as MacDonald noted, the IRS initiated a new program last year that allows tips to be monitored through an employer's point-of-sale system.

"Kamala Harris's first big policy idea is to steal Trump's 'no taxes on tips,' when she backed Democrats' $80B for more IRS audits including on tip income," MacDonald posted on X. "The Biden-Harris Admin also launched a novel new IRS crackdown on tips, getting the IRS inside the door at bars & restaurants to directly monitor tips at the cash register, 'at point-of-sale.' She also backed the $1.7T spending legislation expecting taxpayers to report their $600 phone app transactions to the IRS without she and the Senate reading the bill (later dropped as untenable)."

Harris Will Lay Out Her Economic Plan Today.
Here Are 3 Big Points.

Democratic presidential nominee Kamala Harris will lay out her hotly anticipated economic agenda for her first 100 days in office at a campaign stop in North Carolina this afternoon.

The slate of proposals ranges from an effort to ease the housing crisis to moves meant to lower prices on everything from food to prescription drugs. Highlights include $25,000 in down-payment assistance for first-time homeowners, raising the child tax credit to $6,000 from the current $2,000, and a $35 cap on insulin prices, according to a campaign statement released Friday morning.

To lower grocery costs, Harris plans to propose a federal ban on food and grocery price gouging, giving the Federal Trade Commission and state attorneys general the authority to investigate and impose "strict new penalties" in the food industry.

High food prices have been a budget buster for many Americans. Over the past year, egg prices have increased 19% and bacon prices have risen 8.5%, according to the latest consumer price index report.

The economic message picks up on an inflation-fighting theme from the Biden administration. It has called on oil companies to lower gasoline prices, waged war on hidden fees charged by the hospitality industry, and called on corporate landlords to limit rent increases.

MY VIEW Ernie C. Salgado, Jr.: Never mind the boat-load of restrictive regulations that caused the inflation in the first place.

Number one on the list of "Save the Planet" Executive Order was to restrict the production of oil, sell off our emergency oil supply to China and then buy oil from their Communist buddies to meet the demand causing the production of goods and services to go through the roof (INFLATION.)

While Harris campaigns on fixing the ills of the economy Biden continues to praise the success of the Biden Harris Administration giving her credit for helping form the policies.

Harris just continues to shift the blame to the food industry and oil producers. And price fixing is an original concept that has yet to work the numerous times it has been tried. China & Russia yes, but then again that's the GOAL!

If you don't get it or favor Harris because of gender, skin color or her Communist political ideology I feel sorry for you and we are not going to be friends.

She is nothing more than just another Puppet of the Soros Cartel.

'This is Sharia': Iraq on verge of new law reducing Legal marriage age for girls to NINE

Iraq's parliament is once again causing outrage over the proposal of a bill that would reduce the age of marriage for girls to nine years old, basically making pedophilia legal.

This is nothing new. Iraq's hardliners have been trying to push this through for years but this time it might just become law. The legal age for a girl to marry in the Islamic nation is currently 18, according to the Economic Times, although some claim it is 15.

This is USA Woke.

However, in 2020 the California Woke-Socialist legislator pass SB 145 legalizing pedophilia by allowing "Consensual Sex" with a child age 14 provided the age difference is 10 years or less. Where is the "Outrage?" Nothing, nada, because California is the poster boy for the Woke mental illness consuming America.

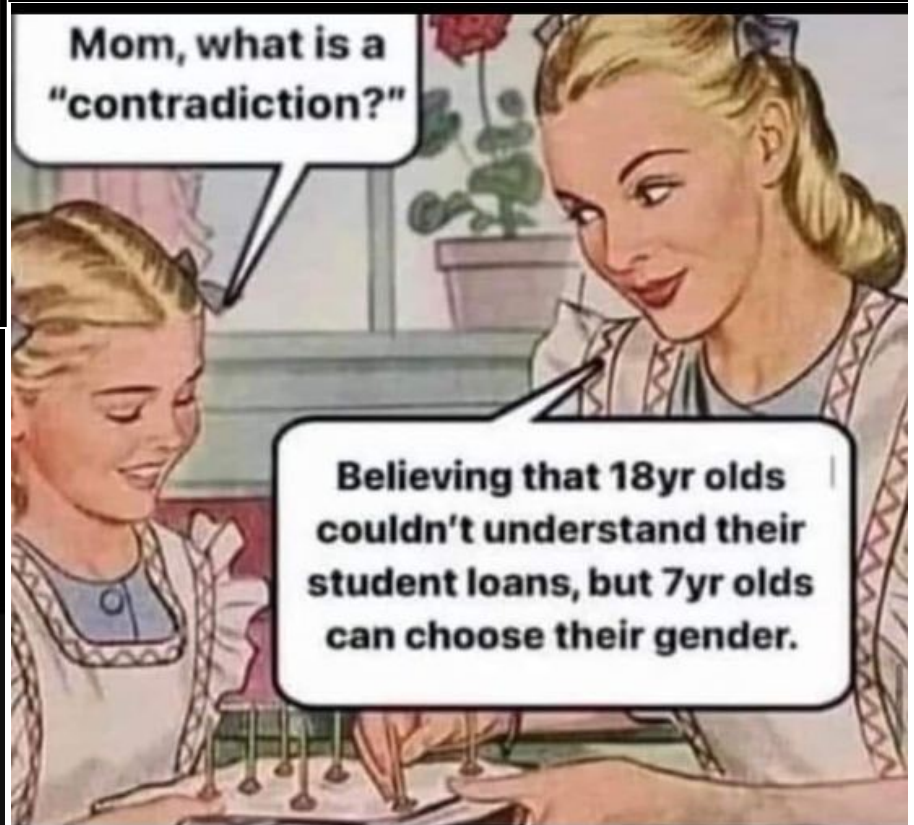

SB 145 would eliminate automatic sex offender registration for young adults who have anal or oral sex with a minor. Instead, a judge would make the decision, just as they do now in cases.

In my view SB 145 is legalizing pedophilia. However, Gov. Newsom, the Woke legislator and the main stream media bill it as an anti-discrimination law to protect LGBTQ.

And just recently California Gov. Newsom signed AB 1955 into law on July 25, 2024.

Elon Musk labled the legislation a "Anti-Parents Rights Bill." In short it prevented the school officials from notifying parents of their child gender preference if different than their biological gender. The Bill was supported by the LGBTQ community.

Musk also called the Bill unconstitutional,

Imagine Running on the Promise of Fixing all the problems You and Your Party Created in the First Place .

And if this isn't enough to turn your stomach we have Communist seeking election as President and Vice President of the United States of America.

While their slogan is FREEDOM & DEMOCRACY nothing could be farther from the truth. Set the rhetoric aside and take a objective analysis of her leadership and accomplishments. And forget about Walz, a complete and total looser.

V.P. Harris was appointed "Border Czar" by Biden and to this very day, she has done nothing to address the crisis at the southern border.

And for starters in the 248 year history of America the Presidential candidate of the American Communist Party has not received one primary vote from an American citizen. Harris will be installed as their 2025 Presidential candidate by a select group of hand picked representatives. Elitist is a better fit.

Over $100 million that was held in PAC's was released upon the resignation of Biden, but you might want to review the BlueAir and Ten Thousand Volts distribution of funds they receive from foreign sources. There is the "Catch-22," because as long as they report the amount and source it's legal. So for example, China could contribute a Billion dollars and BlueAir or Ten Thousand Volts could legally award the funds to groups and organizations that favor the same political ideology.

BPR Business & Politics
Tim Walz's administration awarded millions to group that fundraised for organization linked to al-Qaeda

Under Democratic Gov. Tim Walz, Minnesota awarded millions to an American Islamic association which later fundraised for a Muslim charity that collaborated with an al-Qaeda-linked organization.

The Minnesota Department of Health committed to giving the Islamic Association of North America well over $2 million in public health-related grants between 2020 and 2026, coinciding with Walz's term as Minnesota governor, according to state spending records first reported by the Washington Examiner. The Islamic Association of North America, following Hamas' Oct. 7 terrorist attacks on Israel, held a fundraiser for Rahma Worldwide, a Muslim charity that has collaborated on a Gaza aid program with the Islamic Heritage Revival Society of Kuwait, an organization the U.S. government sanctioned for funding al-Qaeda and which U.S. intelligence officials believed to be part of a Hamas fundraising operation.

Walz, however, called Zaman a "master teacher" at a 2018 event, the Examiner reported.

"I am a teacher, so when I see a master teacher, I know it," Walz said of Zaman, according to the Examiner. "Over the time we've spent together, one of the things I've had the privilege of is seeing the things in life through the eye of a master teacher, to try and get the understanding,"

Walz's administration also gave over $100,000 worth of grants to the Muslim American Society of Minnesota, which Zaman heads.

Walz, now the presumptive Democratic vice presidential nominee, is under fire for his ties to Asad Zaman, an Islamic cleric who shared a pro-Hitler video to social media, defended the Oct. 7 terrorist attacks and posted a link to a Hamas press release on his Facebook page. "The Governor and he do not have a personal relationship. Governor Walz strongly condemns Hamas terrorism," a spokesperson for Vice President Kamala Harris' campaign told CNN

Critical race theory organizers plot their return to the classroom

Contributed by Franklin Motte, Moreno Valley CA * Edited Ernie C. Salgado, Jr. American Indian Reporter (Photos)

The top practitioners of critical race theory just held a weeklong "summer school" in Nashville to strategize, assess the movement, and debate how best to proselytize the next generation. It was an instructive six days of revolutionary agitprop.

Two things immediately stood out. The first is that, yes, despite its protestations to the contrary, the architects of CRT know they must focus intently on those who participate in the teaching profession. If CRT is a tool to be used for "revolutionizing a culture," as its intellectual godfather, Derrick Bell, once put it, it must be implemented by teachers starting in K-12 and through graduate school.

K-12 teachers, along with students at all levels, were given special ticket prices to the CRT conference at a deep discount, as my colleague and friend Jonathan Butcher pointed out. K-12 principals also were given a special package, though at a smaller discount.

The other unmistakable takeaway is that CRT practitioners are aghast at the resistance they have encountered. The public, parents in particular, saw the attempted takeover of their cultural institutions that gathered speed four years ago and fought against it, much to the chagrin of the CRT elite and their followers.

And the summer school was indeed organized by the elite most wounded by popular rejection. It was led by Kimberle Crenshaw, a law professor at Columbia and UCLA. She is not just one of the key founders of the movement, but actually gave CRT its name at the discipline's founding conference in Madison, Wisconsin, in 1989.

Crenshaw also invented the concept of "intersectionality," by which the CRT founders mean that people can be discriminated against based on different attributes — their race, gender, able status, etc.

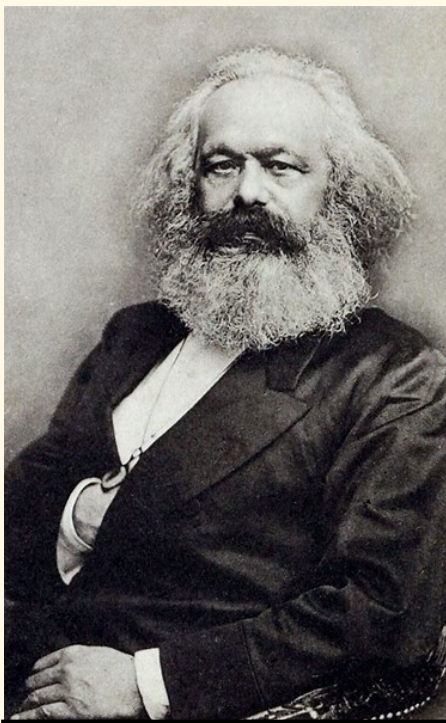

Also on hand to teach CRT was Cheryl Harris, another CRT founder and also a law professor at UCLA; Gloria Ladson-Billings, who perhaps has done more than anyone else to spread CRT's ideas among the teaching profession; and Michael Eric Dyson, whose accomplishments do not equal those of the other three, but who's much better known by the public because of his repeated media appearances. All in all, 40 academics, some very well known, were advertised to appear.

These CRT summer schools started in the long hot summer of 2020, when the whole country was aflame in the Black Lives Matter riots. It looked to the CRT folks then that the world was their oyster, as many leaders of cultural institutions were ready to surrender and accept many CRT principles.

But the oyster has gone bad and begun to stink up the room. In 2020, the summer school organizers saw the moment as a "great opportunity." Those who led this year's summer school, however, regard the present moment with a growing sense of dread.

In their triumphant 2020 announcement, the summer school organizers proclaimed that

The critical race theory is based on Karl Marx's theory, known as Marxism and the Communist ideology of Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels.

"the enduring racial inequalities laid bare by the casual murders of George Floyd, Breonna Taylor, and Ahmaud Arbery ... have loosened the grip of color-blindness as the officially sanctioned anecdote to persistent racial injustice." The 2020 summer school was held "to capture the significance of this opportunity."

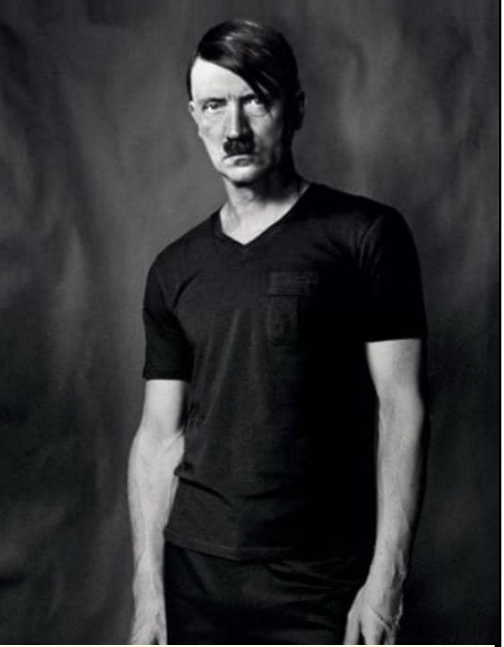

One must hasten to explain that, though most people think color-blindness is very much a good thing and an aspirational goal, it is anathema to CRT.

CRT is a body of work that depicts racism not as an individual act or attitude, but as a "systemic" problem. Racism, it preaches, is embedded in the ordinary business of society, and keeps the oppressor group (whites, males, Christians, heterosexuals, but also Jews, Asian Americans, or anyone else that generally meets with success) in power and wealth, while keeping members of victim groups subjugated. To reverse this dynamic — a goal derived entirely from Marxian concepts — CRT practitioners believe that government and industry must pursue color-conscious action.

Contrast the optimism in the summer of 2020 with this year's foreboding summer school. The description to this year's opening plenary meeting on July 28 said, "Our kick off plenary for CRT Summer School focuses on Tennessee as the 'tip of the spear' for the nationwide backlash against racial justice and democracy." Every session revolved around this idea.

As Crenshaw said to radio host Kaye Wise Whitehead in a video advertising the event, "We started this in the middle of the summer of reckoning, recognizing that critical concepts, like structural racism and implicit bias and intersectionality were all part of the mobilization that we saw in 50 states across the country, demanding accountability. Well, now we are at a point where the backlash against 2020, the backlash against racial justice, has taken the form of suppressing our right to learn, our right to know, our books."

The Original Social Justice Warrior
The liberal arts student who blamed the privileged class for his failures.

All of that is hyperbolic, of course. Many, many people have developed antibodies against the attempted takeover of their country by Marxist academics, and their political leaders have responded by passing laws that make it hard to indoctrinate students and teachers with CRT and eliminate diversity, equity, and inclusion mandates from schools and universities.

These ideas are spread especially in schools of education, where unsuspecting and well-intentioned would-be teachers go to get their credentials.

I spoke to Beanie Geoghegan, co-founder of the group Freedom in Education, who has done a lot of work in this area. When I asked her if education students knew what they were being fed, she said, "Absolutely not." The professors pushing this stuff "really prey on people who care about children," she added.

It's a good thing they are so discomfited at the moment.
